

Los Angeles Downtown News

Best New View – 1100 Wilshire

July 23, 2007

By Evan George

Swim to the side of the infinity pool, clasp the edge and look west. That glimmer left of the Westwood high-rises is the Pacific Ocean. Swing your wet head 90 degrees to catch a bird's eye-level into Downtown's skyline. A turn to the north reveals the hills of Elysian Park that normally obscure Dodger Stadium. Not from this vantage point. Thanks to some poor business practices and a whole lot of funky feng shui, the unusually designed (and long empty) building at 1100 Wilshire has been transformed into a residential tower. While the view is not exclusive to the top story penthouses, you just have to make it to the "first floor" pool level, actually on the 17th floor. At 1100 Wilshire Blvd., (213) 482-9000 or 1100wilshirela.com.